

Catholics and the Environment

What threats are really facing our Earth?

Why are we called to care?

What should our response be?

April 26, 7-8:30PM

Olde Church Lower Level

$5 Donation

Speaker: John Humphreys

In a message to world leaders last December, Pope Benedict XVI stated: 'The degradation of the environment is a pressing moral problem that threatens peace and human life itself...' This is the latest in a long line of statements on the importance of protecting God's creation. The situation is urgent. We are called to act in our homes and lives.

John Humphreys is a biochemist and conservationist who lives in Doylestown and has spoken at Our Lady of Mt. Carmel's "Super Bowl of Catholic Thought". He also blogs on the environment for the Christian organizations "Blessed Earth" and "A Rocha" as well as for the National Resources Defense Council.

For more information contact Mai Pham, 215-968-2262; ext. 36 or mpham@standrewnewtown.com or visit www.standrewnewtown.com.